

X-Face am Mac

Ein X-Face ist ein 48 x 48 Pixel großes Schwarzweiß-Bildchen, das in Kopfzeilen von Mails und Postings kodiert mit jeder Nachricht verschickt wird. Man kann so seine Artikel fürs Usenet oder die elektronische Post mit Karikaturen, Emblemen und sonstigen Ikons verzieren.

X-Faces werden von einigen Unix- und Mac-OS-Programmen unterstützt und dargestellt. Auf der Mac-Seite sind dies MacSOUP, Mailsmith, MT-NewsWatcher und SweetMail.

Für den Mac gibt es zwei Programme, mit denen man ein X-Face erzeugen kann: Den GraphicConverter von Thorsten Lemke ab Version 3.2 (Shareware) und Saving Face 1.2 von Simon Fraser (Freeware).

Wie erzeugt man X-Faces?

- Zunächst bastelt man ein Schwarzweiß-Bild in den Maßen 48 x 48 Pixel. Das kann man per Hand oder durch die Verkleinerung einer vorhandenen Vorlage tun.
- Das fertige Bild sichert man mit dem GraphicConverter oder mit Saving Face als X-Face.
- Den so erzeugten X-Face-Code setzt man im Kontrollfeld »Internet« bei »Erweitert > Nachrichten > Kopftext für alle E-Mails bzw. News-Nachrichten« ein.
- Alle folgenden Mails und Postings sollten nun mit einem X-Face versandt werden.

Ein X-Face in MacSOUP

Einige der X-Faces auf dieser Seite stammen von mir, andere aus Internet-Quellen. Seid kreativ und entwerft Eure eigenen. Wenn Ihr zu faul seid, dann kopiert einfach den gewünschten Kode von hier.
